

Skylark class spring term

During our Design and Technology lesson Skylark class having been learning about the importance of the potato during the Victorian times. Firstly they researched how it is a significant food staple both in Victorian Britain and today.

The children then got the chance to practice their peeling, chopping and slicing skills. They then designed and planned their own potato dish. They got the chance to make these in the school kitchen. They made chips, potato scones and mash.

During Safety Week Skylark Class discussed the importance of our online reputation and what this means. The children looked at a variety of different online scenarios. They used their oracy skills to a class discussion about ways in which meanings in online conversations can be perceived.
